Bryan Jones Kills Mountain Lion In Front Yard; It Is Believed Cat Was After A Small Colt On Ranch

SPRINGVILLE, July 3—The "old west" isn't as old as you might think, at least Bryan Jones, of the Oak Leaf ranch above Springville, is of that opinion, for Mr. Jones stepped out of his ranch home early Saturday morning and killed a mountain lion "right in the front yard."

The lion, a two-year-old female, measures 81 inches from nose to tip of tail; its career ended when Mr. Jones put a bullet from a .270 rifle where a bullet is supposed to be put—right between the eyes.

"It's the first mountain lion I ever saw," Mr. Jones said a couple of hours after the shooting. "Yes sir, the first one, and there it is. You know, now I'm beginning to get a little nervous."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jones heard the ranch dogs barking about 6 a. m., Saturday, but paid no attention until they heard a knock on the front door.

"I got up," says Mr. Jones, "but I was only half awake. A man and two boys were at the door—I later found out they were fish-of the tree, I let her have it.

"She fell out dead, and that was good, because old Pup was right on top of her when she hit the ground."

"Pup" is a stock dog on the Jones' ranch—definitely not a

STORY OF ACCOMPLISHMENT CONTAINED IN ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1957 BY THE TULE RIVER SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT

SPRINGVILLE, July 3—A story of accomplishment in the fields of conservation and water is contained in annual report for 1957, issued by the Tule River Soil Conservation district, with headquarters at Springville.

The report states that "extended effort and demands by the district board of directors that water problems and water rights of the upper Tule river watershed be recognized by the county water board, the state department of water resources and the Tulare county board of supervisors has resulted in the following:

"Public law 566 application has been prepared and filed with the State Soil Conservation commission;

"The preliminary study of water resources inventory has been completed;

"A preliminary study of the Tule river watershed by the state department of water resources to determine the feasibility and desirability of further development."

In its district equipment program, the district has leased a

DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM CONTRACT APPROVED FOR TEA POT DOME DISTRICT

PORTERVILLE, July 3—A letter advising the Tea Pot Dome Water district that the department of interior has approved the water supply and distribution system contract was read to the board of directors at its regular meeting held Tuesday evening. The letter was signed by Bernard Bellport, regional director, and advised that the contract had been approved by the secretary of the department of interior.

In the regional director's letter, attention of the board was called to the fact that early action toward design of the distribution system was highly desirable since the bureau plans to close its Lindsay office as soon as the final design can be prepared in that office.

In commenting on this, Elmer Wales, president of the board, stated that it would appear to be to the best interests of the district

Back Country To Be Visited By Outing Editor

SPRINGVILLE, July 3—Material for newspaper stories and television shows will be gathered by Slim Bernard, editor of the motor and outing section of the Los Angeles Examiner when he travels into the Sierra back country the middle of July.

The trip is sponsored by the Springville chamber of commerce; in the party will be both motion picture and still photographers who will film the trip for newspaper stories and for Bernard's television show, "Wanderlust".

The trip is now planned for July 17-22; the party will pack in through Quaking Aspen, with both Owen Rutherford and Vernie Pace providing stock. Area to be covered is now being worked out.

Several members of the Springville chamber of commerce plan to accompany the southern California group. Similar trips have been made in past years out of the Balch Park pack station.

BUTTERFIELD STAGE MAY ROLL AGAIN

PORTERVILLE, July 3—History may turn back a hundred years early in October if tentative plans are completed for an overnight "corral" in Porterville of the Butterfield Overland Mail Centennial caravan.

This caravan, now being planned, will travel from Tipton, Missouri, to San Francisco, following as closely as possible the original route of Butterfield's Overland Mail stages.

In a communication from H. William Moore, caravan director, to the Porterville chamber of commerce, it is stated that it is possible an overnight "corral" can be arranged for Porterville. Chamber Manager Allan Coates has written for more detailed information.

In the Centennial caravan will be displays of historical interest; a documentary motion picture, "The Butterfield Mail," will be shown at the overnight stops.

The Tule river station for the Butterfield stages was located on the southwest point of Scenic Heights hill, near the intersection of Henderson road and north Main street. Porter Putnam, who later founded Porterville, worked at this station.

John Butterfield set up his stage system, a century ago to link St. Louis, Missouri, with San Francisco. The first 160 miles of the trip were made by train, then travellers boarded the Butterfield stages at Tipton, Missouri, for the 2,700-mile trip that was made on a 24-day schedule.

At one time Butterfield had 1,500 horses and mules, 100 coach-

$992,039,100 GETS YOU $182,314,100

Not only, as we explained last week, would California be subsidizing Texas under provisions of the federal "aid" to education bill (Metcalf, H. R. 10763) that is now before congress, but the handling of funds points up the illogical and utterly foolish financial situation that states often get into when they accept doles from Uncle Sammy.

Before the federal government can "aid" anyone or anything, the government must get the money for the aiding from the taxpayers of the nation. (Elementary, my Dear Watson, but it would appear that we sometimes forget).

In the case of federal "aid" to education, as set up in the Metcalf bill, the federal government would collect $992,039,100 from the taxpayers of the 48 states. The government would then redistribute said $992,039,100 to the 48 states—all states would get something, along with a few territories and possessions—but 15 states, plus the District of Columbia, would get back less than the taxpayers of those states had kicked into the federal government, while the rest of the states would get more back than their taxpayers sent to Washington.

For example, California would send Uncle Sammy $104,263,300, but would get back only $72,350,000, leaving $31,913,300 for someone else; Texas, the state that we have mentioned before, would send in $41,963,300, but would get back $55,450,000, picking up $13,486,700 through the generosity of Uncle with other people's money.

After the shuffling of funds is completed, after all states have sent their money to Washington, then received back the amount that Uncle thinks they should get, a total of $992,039,100 would be collected by the federal government for federal "aid" to education, but, $810,000,000 of that amount would be returned to the states that sent it, while only approximately $182,000,000 would be distributed around the nation in the form of net education "aid".

In other words, the federal government would handle $992,000,000 in order to pass out $182,000,000 to "needy" states.

Or, to put it another way, the states would send $810,000,000 on a round trip to Washington, but on said trip said money would pick up strings and controls, and a portion of the total collected would stop in Washington in the form of "administrative costs."

Perhaps this sort of financing makes sense to a boondoggling bureaucrat, or to those persons who want to control education through federal aid strings, but to some of us grass roots peons who have to dig up the dough for Uncle Sammy in the first place, this sort of things looks plain foolish.

Let's just give the money to our own local school districts in the first place and take care of our own education problems.

MORE PRESSURE ON WESTERN DIVIDE HIGHWAY

SPRINGVILLE, July 3—An effort to put completion of the Western Divide highway high on the county's road priority list will be made by representatives of the Springville chamber of commerce at a highways priority meeting for Tulare county at the county chamber of commerce office in Visalia the evening of July 17.

Completion of the Western Divide highway would provide a "loop" through Bakersfield, the lower Kern canyon, the Western divide mountain country, Quaking Aspen, Springville, Porterville and Strathmore.

Distribution

that all negotiations proceed at as rapid a pace as possible so that the final design can be completed.

The next step for processing of the district's contract will be the review by the California Districts Securities commission. The attorney and engineer for the district were instructed to immediately proceed on this phase of the work. Upon approval by the Districts Securities commission, the electorate of the district must indicate their approval of the contract before signing of the document can be accomplished.

The contract assures the district of 7,500 acre feet of firm supply of water from the Friant-Kern canal which provides three acre feet of water for each irrigable acre in the district. The water will be brought to district lands by construction of a distribution system also provided for in the contract. The amount of $1,800,000 has been set up for the construction of this system. The district will then have two years of development period prior to entering into 40 years of equal payments to reimburse the government for the distribution system cost. The standard interest-free contract available to reclamation projects will apply to the repayment program.

Approximately 17.4 miles of pipe will be incorporated in the distribution system. Elevations of the pipe will vary between 400 feet at canal side to over 580 feet at uppermost areas of the district. There will be three pumping plants to raise the water to sufficient pressure to serve the entire district.

The contract also provides that the district may assess different repayment and operating costs to the eastern and western portions of the district. This has been done so as to limit the financial responsibilities of the people owning land on the west side of the district since this can be more cheaply served with water.

Present contract negotiations are being pressed by the attorney for the district, Leroy McCormick of Visalia, and the engineer, Fred A. Strauss of Porterville. The board of directors of the district is headed by President Elmer K. Wales, and also includes Directors Henry Campbell, Martin Michaelis, Gilbert Benson and Irwin L. Staley. Mrs. Marjorie Meier serves as secretary for the district—regular meetings of the board of directors are held at 8 p. m. the first Tuesday of each month at her home.

SPECIAL WAYS TO USE PEACHES IN TASTY DISHES

FRESNO, July 3. — Here are some special ways to use California peaches in tasty dishes that are ideal for summer, with recipes presented by Sybil Henderson, promotion director for the California Fresh Peach Advisory board:

Peel, pit, and halve fresh peaches. Place in small bowl. Cover with a mixture of ½ cup fresh orange juice, flavored with 1 tablespoon port wine. Chill at least 1 hour. Serve as dessert or with cottage cheese for salads.

Modern Peach Melba is made by using fresh peaches, raspberry sundae topping and whipped cream or ice cream. Spoon raspberry sauce into individual serving dishes. Place a chilled peach half, cut side up, in each dish. Spoon whipped cream onto each, serving with additional raspberry sauce.

Here's a trick with honey sweetened fresh peaches and spice cake. . . . Slice cake, toast lightly. For that special touch, heap with fresh peaches and whipped cream.

Try topping individual baked custards with sliced fresh peaches. They make perfect flavor combinations.

California provides 6% of the nation's production of milk.

YOUR LEGISLATOR AT WORK!

Senator
J. Howard Williams
32nd District
California State Legislature

Its system of interim committees authorized to act between sessions gives your legislature an effective means of keeping abreast of day-to-day developments in all fields of activity in which your state government has a legitimate interest. Through these committees and their various sub-groups, the legislature can follow important events and trends in local as well as in state administration which might require statutory consideration.

Your legislature has the basic responsibility for enacting laws which establish the functions and authority of the many different kinds of local government units in the State, most of which have been created in response to public demand by you, the citizens of various communities located everywhere within our California boundaries. As Legislators, we also have a continuing responsibility to keep such laws up-to-date, to make sure that they are fully adapted to the current needs of our ever-expanding population and economy.

The various interim committees which share the watch-dog function on local government operations are our best tools to use in carrying out our duties connected with community organization and affairs. Without the great advantage of their ability to dig out detailed facts concerning any problem, and their flexibility in holding investigative hearings wherever and whenever needed, we would be considerably handicapped. It would be difficult to provide you with the legal foundations for local units which would be most responsive to your needs, yet most efficient and well administered.

Under our California laws, the different kinds of local units have been given varying degrees of self-government, but all of them have been made subject to periodic review of one kind or another in the interests of the general public welfare. Ordinarily, this review function is delegated to the grand juries of the various counties, but in some instances special investigative laws have been passed by your legislature.

Also, in recent years, a series of laws have been enacted, intended to assure full public knowledge of official actions of both local and state agencies. "Star chamber" government, with its dangers of special favors and special discriminations, is now only past history in California, we are confident.

Under our state constitution, in addition to the delegated statutory investigative powers, your legislature has a continuing responsibility for keeping itself informed as to the manner in which the many local government units perform their duties. It is a responsibility to which many of the interim committees devote most of their attention.

Mother Nature has richly endowed California with natural resources of all kinds. Their utilization has greatly increased our agricultural and industrial wealth—thus attracting thousands of new residents and providing a better standard of living for all of us. Yet experience has demonstrated that proper preservation and utilization of these resources must be a constant concern of your legislature.

For more than two generations, petroleum has been one of our greatest sources of wealth. During recent years, our off-shore oil fields have become a primary factor in production. Much time has been devoted by your legislature

Spring Pig Crop Above Last Year

SACRAMENTO, July 3. —California spring pig crop, estimated at 305,000 head, will be up eight per cent over last year. United States estimate is 52,745,000 head, an increase of two per cent.

to making sure that the governmental share of their revenues would be used for the benefit of all citizens of California.

Recently, charges were laid before a sub-group of the Assembly interim committee on judiciary that "influence peddling" and favoritism were involved in the granting of certain off-shore drilling leases by local government units. The subcommittee promptly held a hearing on the matter. As a result of preliminary testimony obtained then, further meetings will be held. Regardless of outcome, the incident demonstrates that your legislature is always watchful.

Transite® Irrigation Pipe
prevents water loss,
cuts pumping costs

Whatever your system, you'll find that the surest way to get low-cost, trouble-free irrigation is to install Transite Pipe. In sprinkler irrigation, underground Transite feeder mains will assure an adequate supply of water whenever needed. Transite resists corrosion, inside and out; deposits, due to tuberculation, will not build up. As a result, rated pressures are maintained, no fuel or power is wasted by overworked pumps. Tight joints prevent water seepage.

In surface irrigation, too, for tail-water pump-back, and for supply service where water is piped to the area of application, Transite will save all-important water, reduce operating costs. Installation is simple; specially designed couplings assure tight joints and line flexibility. And their rubber ring joints stay tight... are unaffected by wetting and drying out between applications. Transite Pipe is strong and durable, resists shock and vibration.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO WAGES IN RIGHT TO WORK STATES? HERE IS THE TRUTH ON AN ABUSED SUBJECT

(From the editorial page of the Santa Ana Register, May 28, 1958)

One of the more important-sounding arguments advanced by the enemies of the so-called "Right-To-Work" amendment is that states which have already obtained such legislation are suffering from a lack of employment far in excess of those states which do not have such legislation.

If this were true, it could be a telling point.

Let us look at the record.

At the moment, there are 18 states which have Right-To-Work laws of one kind or another on the books.

Florida was the first state in the nation to come up with this safeguard. It was approved in 1944 as a part of the state constitution. Since then, Florida has been experiencing a boom which has refused to taper off . . . Factories are flocking to Florida. The state is enjoying a population growth which is second only to California's and in some localities it exceeds everything else in the country.

Additionally, since the Right-To-Work clause in the constitution was approved, wages have increased in Florida on an average of $9.46 per week. This is far ahead of the national average.

A number of states passed Right-To-Work legislation in 1947.

These states are: Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Without exception, wages have been raised in these states since that time, and, in the case of North Dakota, the rate boost amounted to $10.04 per week, which is one of the highest weekly boosts in the country . . .

Since 1947, other states have obtained Right-To-Work laws. These states are: Alabama (1953), Indiana (1957), Mississippi (1954), Nevada (1952), South Carolina (1954) and Utah (1955).

The average gain in wages in all of these states since laws were passed comes to $7.26. This is 16.3 per cent higher than gains in non-Right-To-Work states where, in a corresponding period of time, the average gain has been $6.24.

These are interesting statistics, particularly in view of the character of the states which have obtained Right-To-Work laws. With the exception of Indiana, virtually every state has passed Right-To-Work legislation, is a state not particularly noted for its industrial development. And the labor bosses' cry is that industrial states will suffer if the law is passed.

Indiana, by virtue of the fact that it was the most recent state to gain this union safeguard and also because of its manifold industries, is a particularly crucial spot for a close examination.

The state had been averaging seven new industrial plants per month from April of 1955 to May of 1957. Then after the law was passed, Indiana began averaging 10 new plants per month and has continued at that pace for a full year. And for every 100 new plants, only one has moved away. In only a year's time, average weekly wages in Indiana have increased by $5.96, which is only 28 cents less than the average maintained by the non-Right-To-Work states.

In short, union boss bleatings that Right-To-Work laws lower wages and cut into employment is simply a note of propaganda and alarm, cut out of whole cloth. There isn't a word of truth in it . . .

LESTER REED BACK ON JOB AS TRAPPER

PORTERVILLE, July 3 — Lester Reed, who retired last year as a state trapper, is back on the job this summer taking predators in the Gray Meadow, Lloyd Meadow, Flat Iron, Kern flat areas.

Reed is being paid $650 for his summer's efforts on a cooperative basis by the county of Tulare (from fine money), from the Southern Tulare County Sportsmen's association, and from Owen Rutherford, of Rutherford's Pack station at Quaking Aspen.

In addition, Reed will keep whatever bounty money he is able to get. He reports that he will be after several lions that are working in the area where he will be located.

"Why have auto insurance rates gone up the past few years?" a good client asked recently. "Is it because there are more cars and more accidents?"

"Partly, perhaps," I replied. "But one of the biggest reasons for the increase is due to the climbing expense of fixing up smashed cars. The styling trend toward bigger taillights, dual headlights, fins, etc., boosts the costs of repair. Also, cars cost more than they did just four or five years ago, so the companies have to charge more too."

I continued. "With regard to bodily injury claims, the increase in the past few years has partly been due to rising hospital and medical costs. But also, as one company executive explains, 'the public is a lot quicker to ask for something'. His company, for example, had a third more personal injury claims per 1,000 accidents in 1957 than in 1954, despite the fact that the number of passengers per car is decreasing."

"The amount per bodily injury claims is also climbing. A major company reports the average such claim in 1951 was $293. In 1955, it was $517. But last year it was more than $700."

Jim shook his head. "I can see auto insurance is more necessary than ever, even if it costs a little more than it once did."

Fishing on all forks of the Tule river watershed is at its best. All forks will be heavily planted for the July 4th weekend. The river is dropping in flow from two to three inches daily.

Planted fish are taking salmon eggs, spinners and cheese baits. Native fish are taking worms, spinners and flies. Some good native fish have been taken on grasshoppers and buckeye bugs.

From Quaking Aspen pack stations come reports that fishing is poor on Big Kern—water is still too high. On Little Kern, fishing is fair; tributaries are fair to good.

Balch Park pack station reports good fishing on upper Wishon

Verticillium Wilt Found In Peaches

VISALIA, July 3—Verticillium wilt, a soil borne fungus disease which is commonly found on crops such as cotton, tomatoes and potatoes, also attacks peach and nectarine trees. Jim LaRue, farm adviser, reports that the damaging affects of the disease are now being observed in Tulare county. Most young orchards having a past crop history of cotton or tomatoes are showing damage. This year was ideal for the fungus, as cool weather and good soil moisture will aid its activity.

fork. Fishing is good in Summit lake; other lakes are inaccessible.

Prospects for the holiday weekend are very good on all forks of the Tule river.

LARGEST IN THE WEST—Huntington Beach Steam Station's first 200,000-kilowatt generating unit has now been placed in commercial operation by Southern California Edison Company. It is the largest steam electric generating unit ever built on the Pacific Coast. When an identical "sister" unit is completed by the end of this year, this one station will produce enough electricity to serve a city the size of Cleveland and will represent an Edison Company investment of about $58,000,000.

EXPANDED FOREIGN MARKET FOR CITRUS IS SEEN BY SUNKIST GENERAL MANAGER; SALES ON HIGHLY COMPETITIVE BASIS

SANTA BARBARA, July 3—Speaking before several hundred Sunkist directors, district exchange managers, association managers, growers and delegates to the annual meeting of the Agricultural Council of California who attended the meeting of the Sunkist board of directors held at the Miramar hotel, Santa Barbara, recently, F. R. Wilcox, general manager of Sunkist, gave a comprehensive report on his recently concluded survey of citrus export opportunities in Europe.

"Europe is a good market and it will expand for citrus but because other sources of supply are more immediately adjacent to the Continent, it is a highly competitive market," he said. "Sunkist shippers must do everything possible to see that only good quality fruit is moved overseas and above all, we must be sure that the export outlet is not considered a 'dumping ground' or we will inevitably lose the goodwill we have so successfully built for our California-Arizona citrus."

Mr. Wilcox pointed out that both Spain and Italy send only their top quality fruit to the Continent and this source of supply, added to that from other citrus producing nations such as Israel and South Africa, makes for formidable competition.

Because of the lack of U. S. dollars, exports of citrus to Great Britain have been on a license basis since the end of World War II. About 130 firms hold citrus import licenses in that country and Sunkist has obtained a good share of the business in that nation.

"Indications are we will soon be able to increase sales in England," Mr. Wilcox reported. "The U. S. State department has been advised that the board of trade of England will import $20 million worth of fresh, dried and canned fruit. These purchases will be commercial imports, not aid."

Although the starting date of the purchase program is not yet announced, the Sunkist general manager said a conference to allot this fund would be held in California sometime next month. He stated this $20 million transaction was undoubtedly due to the concerted effort made by citrus and deciduous cooperative organizations in California to open the British market.

Currently the best Sunkist customers are located in Belgium, Holland, West Germany and Switzerland where economy is high; consumer purchasing power strong; and proper dietary habits are being strongly advocated by the local governments. People in those countries are health and fruit conscious and there are real opportunities to increase citrus consumption in those nations.

Sunkist business in France is currently at a standstill and this situation is not expected to change greatly in the immediate future except in the event of a severe shortage of fruits from other areas. Potentially, France is a good customer since that nation imported 40,000 tons of lemons and 500,000 tons of oranges last years from various countries but nothing from the United States.

Spain has recovered quickly from the freeze of a few years ago, Mr. Wilcox reported. The citrus industry is an important industry of that nation, enjoying the full support of the people and the government. The limiting factor in increasing plantings is a lack of water and if that problem could be solved, expansion would go ahead rapidly.

Lemon production in Italy for the 1958-59 season is estimated at 400,000 tons, up 50,000 tons this seasons. Substantial quantities of Italian citrus are sold to Russia and the Satellite Countries but producers still look to the U. S. for dollars and indications are that rather sizeable amounts of juice and oil products will be sent to this country from time to time.

ROAD PRIORITY WILL BE SET FOR COUNTY

PORTERVILLE, July 3.—Porterville chamber of commerce, Terra Bella chamber of commerce and the Orange Belt Highway association will be represented when community highway committee representatives meet at the county chamber of commerce office in Visalia, July 17, 7:30 p. m., to discuss priority of highway work in the county.

Final recommendations will be made at a meeting at the Hotel Johnson in Visalia at noon, July 25, when representatives of the state chamber of commerce and state highway officials will be present.

Highway project priorities in Tulare county are annually recommended to the California division of highways through the state chamber of commerce.

Potatoes Are Not Fattening

VISALIA, July 3.—The popular belief that potatoes are fattening is not true, says Mary Ruth Dewey, Tulare County Home advisor. One medium sized potato has only about 100 calories, but, of course, gravy or butter with potatoes adds calories in a hurry. Two tablespoons of gravy may add more than 100 calories; one tablespoon of butter has 100 calories. Actually few foods offer as much in nutrition as potatoes.

Cotton Acreage Being Measured Throughout County

VISALIA, July 3.—All farms in Tulare county with cotton allotments, acreage reserve agreements and conservation reserve contracts are now being visited by acreage reporters from the office of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee to determine whether or not individual farmers are in compliance.

J. C. Phillips, committee chairman, requests that all farmers cooperate in the acreage measurements. Where discrepancies are found, farmers will receive an official notice with instructions as to acreage corrections necessary to comply.

and they done it," running the lion up a tree.

When the fishermen came through the Jones' ranch gate, the lion jumped out over the heads of the dogs, but with Pup leading the chase, was treed again a short distance away. The dogs held the cat there until Mr. Jones arrived.

In the party of fishermen who originally spotted the lion were: Cecil E. Cook, who resides in the Veterans' housing project at Exeter, and two boys, Frankie Callison, 15, also of Exeter, and Leon Johnson, 14, of Modesto.

Mr. Jones believes that the lion was after a small colt that is being bottle-fed on the ranch. It is possible that the cat had been in the vicinity for two or three weeks, since cattle in an adjoining field had appeared unduly nervous at times during that period.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones were citrus growers at Garden Grove, in southern California, for a number of years. Four years ago they "retired" from the citrus business, bought the Oak Leaf ranch on the Yokohl valley road, and are now raising cattle.

OUR TOWN

By Gardner (Bud) Wheeler

HERE WE ARE IN THE MIDST of a Fourth of July weekend, or as some historical purists insist, Independence Day weekend. Various councils for safety and the preservation of life and limb are warning one and all that it is very poor practice to set off dynamite charges to celebrate the occasion; especially if said charge is absent minded held in the hand. All the local constabularies are rallying around, too, and warning that fire-cracker and fireworks are very dangerous propositions, and that anyone playing with such items is apt to find himself with a large hole in his pocketbook after paying his fine.

THIS IS ALL CALCULATED TO make it possible to enjoy our independence. Unfortunately, as our civilization marches forward, we get embroiled in longer and longer er weekends. We have become so civilized that we can generate a long weekend at the slightest excuse. So, while we are saving ourselves from the ravages of firecrackers and Roman candles, we sail madly up and down the highways at a pace that is faster than somewhat. This pastime is considerably more dangerous than being in the front trench of the Battle of Bunker Hill. Somehow, we are unreconstructed enough to feel that shooting firecrackers is safer than going out and fighting the Battle of Highway 99.

WE WOULD LIKE TO PASS on a few sports comments for our more athletically inclined readers. The Babe Ruth League teams are busily engaged in knocking one another about in the local ball park. Sometimes the games resemble a merry-go-round, and at other times, they take on a big league aspect. Of course, under the lighting system of our ball park, anything can happen. Fly balls soar into the atmosphere and disappear in the overhanging shadows. This is very confusing to the outfielders, who dash about in all directions waiting for the ball to come back into the filtered lighting system. Usually, the reappearance occurs out of reach of the fielder. This situation causes much embarrassment to the fielder and much delight to the batter.

NO ONE CAN ACCUSE THE Park Commission of being pushed frivolously down the path of progress. They are the gentlemen in charge of the lights, and apparently feel that enough light to detect a slight movement on the field is light enough. With this staunch, conservatism rampant, balls will continue to disappear into outer space.

A LOOK AT THE STANDINGS of the Babe Ruth League is almost as confusing as the lighting situation. The two teams that were one-two in the league last year are battling it out for the cellar position, while the team that was in the cellar last year is presently on top of the heap. This is called balancing the league, and is probably a product of the reverse draft system. Certainly, no team is going to corner all the talent, like the Yankees in the American league. In any case, we recommend the viewing of these games, but if a fly goes up, quick, because in the Porterville park you hit a fly into the air, it falls to earth you know not where.

Now You Can Call Fish!

Tested for years before being placed on the market, a revolutionary, much talked about fish caller is proving a boon to fishermen to attract all types of fish. The idea is simple: the caller, Krafty, is a patented buzzer and replaceable flashlight battery combination that makes a hum like an insect (food to fish). Put into the water on a separate line, it attracts fish to the vicinity.

However, like duck or goose calls, the fish caller usurps none of the sportsman's skill. He still must use the right bait, and must pull the fish into the boat after they bite. But if there are fish within "hearing distance," Krafty will call them and that's half the battle. Thus, the caller also serves as a fish "finder."

This unique fish caller is being marketed by Birch-Kraft Corporation of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, headed by Frank V. Birch, a Past President of Lions International. Birch will mail a folder of testimonials from famous fishermen to anyone interested and would also like to receive statements from fishermen who have used his fish caller.
